

SIZE AND LOCATION

The University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio, also called UT Health San Antonio, (<http://www.uthscsa.edu>) has one central campus, as defined by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools Commission on Colleges. However, in order to provide clarity for the general public and consumers of the university's patient, educational or community services, the university's central campus is consistently described to include multiple campus identities in all marketing, communications and advertising collateral. In San Antonio, Texas, they are the Joe R. and Teresa Lozano Long Campus and the Greehey Academic and Research Campus.

Joe R. and Teresa Lozano Long Campus

The Joe R. and Teresa Lozano Long School of Medicine (<http://som.uthscsa.edu/>), School of Dentistry (<http://www.uthscsa.edu/academics/dental/>), School of Nursing (<http://nursing.uthscsa.edu/>), School of Health Professions (<http://www.uthscsa.edu/academics/health-professions/>) and the Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences (<http://gsbs.uthscsa.edu/>) are based on the Joe R. & Teresa Lozano Long Campus, as are the Dolph Briscoe Jr. Library (<http://library.uthscsa.edu/>) and most of the university's administrative offices.

Physical address: 7703 Floyd Curl Dr., San Antonio, Texas 78229-3900

Greehey Academic and Research Campus

A mile away from the Long Campus, at 8403 Floyd Curl Dr., is the Greehey Academic and Research Campus. This campus houses the Greehey Children's Cancer Research Institute (<https://gccri.uthscsa.edu/>), dedicated in 2004 and home to faculty researchers studying cancer; the Robert F. McDermott Clinical Science Building, home to the Research Imaging Center; the Research Administration Building that houses the Human Research Protection Programs, the Biomolecular NMR Spectroscopy core facility and The University of Texas School of Public Health San Antonio (<https://uthscsa.edu/public-health/>); and the South Texas Research Facility (STRF), a state-of-the-art facility that opened in 2011 and houses the Optical Imaging Core Facility and Bioanalytics & Single Cell Core Lab. The campus also includes the Mays Cancer Center, home to UT Health San Antonio MD Anderson Cancer Center, located at 7979 Wurzbach Road, and one of only four National Cancer Institute-Designated Cancer Centers in Texas; the Medical Arts & Research Center, the flagship clinical and research facility of the Long School of Medicine's faculty practice, the Center for Oral Health Care & Research (<http://www.uthscsa.edu/patient-care/dental/>), located at 8210 Floyd Curl Dr., which houses more than 100 School of Dentistry faculty experts, in addition to 616 dental residents and students; and the Sam and Ann Barshop Institute for Longevity and Aging Studies (<https://barshopinstitute.uthscsa.edu>), which brings together the world's leading scientists in aging and longevity research, now located at the corner of Floyd Curl and Charles Katz drives. In 2020, the UT System Board of Regents approved plans for the $443 million UT Health San Antonio Multispecialty & Research Hospital (<https://uthealthsahospital.org>), which will be located at 8311 Ewing Halsell Drive and feature 144 beds, 12 operating rooms, an intensive care unit, infusion center, emergency department, pharmacy, laboratories and an imaging center. Construction is expected to be completed in 2024.

In 2022, the University of Texas System Board of Regents approved plans to create The UT School of Public Health San Antonio (<https://uthscsa.edu/public-health/>), a collaboration between The University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio, also called UT Health San Antonio, and The University of Texas at San Antonio (UTSA). The Research Administration Building on the Greehey Campus of UT Health San Antonio is currently under extensive renovations to house The University of Texas School of Public Health San Antonio.
